

A metal basket with an orange liner Kasler bought years ago from an antiques shop served as the inspiration for the upstairs landing and loft-like space. "I wanted this space to be more fun and playful," she says. Vintage orange chair, Interiors Market, (404) 352-0055. Sectional, Bungalow Classic. Artwork, Jackson Fine Art, (404) 233-3739. Ottoman, Pizitz Home & Cottage. ■ In the master bedroom, lavender, brown, and white comfortably coexist. "The inspiration was seashells," says Kasler. Wall sconces, Ballard Designs, (800) 536-7551. Coral on sconces, Smith Grubbs & Associates, ADAC, (404) 239-9206. Embroidered linens, Belle Chambre, (404) 816-5355.

keep this house all white," says Kasler. She used Benjamin Moore's White Dove throughout the house, creating a soft, relaxing backdrop that conjures the sensation of being on the beach. White, in fact, may just define Kasler's personal style: always a stand-out and energetic—but never trendy.

Natural textures, too, proved inspirational: Unlined linen draperies in the living room diffuse the light so you can still see through on a sunny day; sand-colored sisal rugs cover the white-washed floors and anchor the sitting areas. "Everything is really tans and whites on the main floor, so color comes through in the art, fabrics, linens and pillows," she says. "When you open up all the French doors, you get this great breeze coming in from the beach and you put some music on, it just evokes that beach feeling."
